

THE WHITE HOUSE

July 23, 1992

Dear Friends,

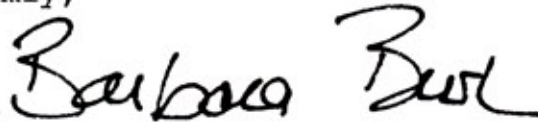

What good news it was to learn that the nation's convenience stores donated more than $38 million to charitable organizations last year.

I understand that the convenience store industry is active in many types of community service across the United States. Your participation cannot always be measured in dollars and cents, but it is much needed and greatly appreciated. Businesses like yours, which reach out in service to our communities, are vital to the future of our nation.

George Bush joins me in expressing our gratitude for your efforts to make our country a better place. We congratulate you for being "points of light."

With all best wishes,

Warmly,
